Van Ness Feldman represents clients in almost every component of the oil, refined products, and natural gas industries, including the firm's involvement in two of the largest natural gas pipeline projects ever constructed in North America—the Rockies Express Pipeline and the Alaska Gas Pipeline—and a number of other pipelines developed to access shale gas reserves. In addition, the firm serves as legal counsel to numerous oil and refined product pipelines, interest holders, refiners, offshore exploration and production companies, offshore drilling companies, and LNG terminal developers.

With one of nation's most well-renowned natural gas & oil practices, Van Ness Feldman continues to build upon the firm's long-standing reputation as an industry leader by approaching each project strategically, bringing to bear unparalleled substantive legal expertise, a results-oriented understanding of client's business goals, and an intimate familiarity with impacts of energy and environmental policy and regulation on large scale energy projects.
